

Fort Scott Airport Day

September 8, 2007

Dedicated to the memory of Dr. Guy Baldwin who was a featured performer there for four years.

Through the great efforts of Bob Marshall and Kenny Howard, among a number of others, the city of Fort Scott was treated to another well organized family day of entertainment at the airport. The weather was overcast with occasional periods of rain which threatened the success of the show. A clever mix of ground based entertainment kept everyone's attention until the weather cleared. Breakfast was served in a large hangar replete with live orchestra music provided by the local High School. A car show and vendors rounded out a wide variety of attractions.

Performers Shannon Daniel & Philip Butcher finding humor in the possibility of ever seeing the sun again over Fort Scott.

Shannon Daniel flew a good show in his classic Canadian-built Skybolt with a 200 HP engine.

Motorcycle trick riders entertained the crowd while waiting on the weather to clear.

When in Fort Scott . . .you just have to see the historic downtown area!

Historic downtown Fort Scott is a must see! Charming antique shops and brick streets are an unexpected treasure.

. . .And the architecture warrants a slow cruise through town. Many of these old mansions have been restored and converted to bed & breakfast or day spa.

... And of course, you have to see the Fort. ...
